Peacocks Aren’t Vain…

Peacocks are colorful, and seem to enjoy displaying their feathery decorative plumage. People call them vain and proud, but I disagree. They’re just using the assets that God equipped them with, in order to attract a mate. I think that was nice of God to give the male birds something extra. More colorful appearances, more melodic singing, nest building skills, and even awesome dance moves, in some species. For the most part, male birds really need these dating advantages, because birds are nerds. So I don’t think it’s accurate to say that peacocks are proud and vain, as those are sins, and animals don’t sin. People sin, and some traits in animals serve to remind us of our own sin. Thanks, animals.
